

Trees, A Christmas Poem

Trees, trees, trees ... I love them all
Little, big, short, and tall
Whether Oak, Ash, Maple or Yew
Pine, Poplar, Crepe Myrtle too.

I see the green growth of Spring
And then the colors Autumn brings
I view their leaves as they descend
To the ground below in Winter's wind.

I see them in their moments bare
Knowing new leaves will soon be there
I rejoice that Almighty God made a tree
And on it he died for you and me.

The Christmas Tree brings to mind
The baby born to save mankind
His name is Jesus, our Redeemer King
Let us with joy begin to sing.

Alleluia! Alleluia! To Christ the King!

An Original poem written December 3, 2021, by Peggy A. Keady and dedicated to the Glory of God and in loving memory of my parents, Jude & Mrs. William Colbert Keady.
